THE EXILE OF ALBYN.

STRAIN IV.

Sweet land of my forefathers!—nurse of the brave!

With pang more heart-rending than language can tell,

I see thee degraded, destroy'd and en-slav'd,

And hopeless, and hapless, I bid thee farewell!

Al! never may baseness complete thy undoing,

Or hand of a tyrant e'er rivet thy chains!

May foes to thy freedom meet havoc and ruin,

While the red tide of vengeance rolls over thy plains!

Ye friends of my bosom! a soul-breath'd farewell!

These warm tears express my reluctance to part;

Between us an ocean's rough bosom may swell,

But ne'er shall it burst our fond union of heart.

The joys of the past—like the breeze softly blowing,

Which wafts on its wing the sweet song of the bard,

Will soften our woes, while with eyes o-verflowing,

We own that blest mem'ry is friend-ship's reward.

The grey cliffs of Albion recede from my sight,

For the genius of distance sits dark on the waves;

I see not her dim, wand'ring flames of the night—

I hear not her storm-spirits shriek from their caves.

The wide-spreading lake, and the calm-flowing river,

The sheep-speckled hill, and the deep-winding glen,

Like a sweet morning vision have vanish'd forever,

And never these eyes will behold them again.

But, Albion! I fly to the land of the West,

Where the standard of Freedom is proudly unfurl'd,

And free as the wind on the ocean's rough breast,

Are the sons of her forests—the pride of the world.

Unable, my country! to witness thy slavery,

Too weak to prevent it—what can I but flee?

But rouse up thy children to death-daring bravery—

I will join them—and triumph or die with the FREE!

GLENTIVARDO.

GENERAL KOSCIUSKO.

Translated for the Baltimore Patriot, from the Paris "Journal de Commerce," October 31.

The funeral ceremony of General Kosciuszko took place this day.

His name belongs to the civilized world; and his virtues to humanity.

America includes him among her most illustrious defenders. Poland resents in him a patriot, whose life was consecrated to the cause of her liberty and independence.

France and Switzerland admired in him the man of beneficence and virtue.

Russia, who vanquished him, never beheld a man more unshaken in his principles, or firmer in adversity.

We are not at all surprised, then, that the funeral service, celebrated in honor of General Kosciuszko, attracted to day, to the church of St. Rock, not only the friends of the illustrious deceased that were in Paris, but also a great number of Poland-dere, many of whom have shared the dangers and the victory of our warriors, and who wore that honorable distinction which occasions such glorious recollections.

The Americans also paid the tribute due to the memory of the friend of Washington, of the hero who shed his blood in their defence, and was one of those to whom they are indebted for the independence of their country.

Among those who attended, we remarked one of our greatest literary characters, Mr. Simmond de Simond; one of the defenders of our constitutional rights in the chamber of peers, Mr. de Broglie; and that General (Lafayette) who a companion in arms of Washington and Kosciuszko; shared their dangers, their glory, their noble disinterestedness, and, if we may so express ourselves, life itself with them. Nothing but severe indisposition prevented the attendance of the Minister Plenipotentiary of the U. States.

After the service, the following biographical note was distributed, and we publish it in the belief that it cannot fail to interest our readers. One of the virtues which distinguished the illustrious deceased, was an uncommon modesty. The person who has sketched, in a few lines, the principal events of the life of the hero of Poland, has conformed with his character, in leaving facts to speak for themselves:

"Thaddeus Kosciuszko was born in Lithuania. He was educated at Warsaw, in the corps of Cadets; to learn the art of war and of national defence, he went and took service in the rising states of North America.—He remained there until the end of the war of independence, and there merited and obtained the friendship of General Washington, of whom he was the companion in arms.

"When the very existence of his country was menaced in 1793, Kosciuszko, hastened to return to it; he offered it his services and the experience he had acquired in a country which, like Poland, fought for liberty, and had succeeded in establishing it without the sacrifice of order. He made his first campaign as Brigadier General, under the orders of Prince Joseph Poniatowski. In the second, which took place in 1794, it was he, who, by the enthusiasm of national honor, rallied the army; and Prince Poniatowski then placed himself under his banners.

"Without funds, without magazines, without fortresses, Kosciuszko maintained his army for nine months against forces infinitely superior.—Poland then existed only in his camp. Devotedness made up for the want of resources, and courage supplied the deficiency of arms; but the general had imparted his noble character to all his soldiers. Like him they knew no danger, they dreaded no fatigues, when the honor and the liberty of Poland were depending; like him they endeavored to lessen the sacrifices which were required of the inhabitants for national independence; and their obedience to their venerated chief, was the more praiseworthy, as it was voluntary. He held his authority by no other tenure, than that of his virtues.

"That unequal struggle could not however, last long. Kosciuszko was overcome by superior numbers at the battle of Maciejowice. He was wounded, taken prisoner and conducted to Russia. The Emperor Paul, on his accession to the throne, thought he could not grant the Polish nation a more acceptable favor than to restore to liberty the hero whose loss they regretted. He himself announced to General Kosciuszko, that his captivity was at an end.—He wished him to accept, moreover, a present of fifty thousand ducats of Holland; but the general refused it. Kosciuszko preferred rather to depend for subsistence on the recompense to which his services in America had entitled him.

"With this humble fortune, obtained in so honorable a way, he lived for a while in the United States; then in France, near Fontainebleau, in the family of Zeltner; and lastly in Switzerland. From that time he refused to take any part in the affairs of his country, for fear of endangering the national tranquility, the offers that were made to him being accompanied with no sufficient guarantee. A fall from his horse, by which he was dragged into a precipice, not far from Vevey, was the cause of his death, which took place at Soleure, the 15th of October. He was aged upwards of 60 years. He had never been married, and his family is reduced to a single nephew, who lived far distant.

"But the Poles all considered themselves as his children, they encompassed him with respect and love, and presented with a degree of pride to other nations that model of the virtues of their country, that man so pure, so upright, so great at the head of an army, so modest in private life, so formidable to his enemies in battle, so humane, so kind to the vanquished, so zealous for the glory and independence of his country."

ALEXANDRIA: WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 31.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT AT WASHINGTON.

Tuesday, December 30, 1817.

Some days at least will elapse, before large subjects, that demand elaborate discussion, will be brought before Congress.

The attendance is comparatively thin, and for that reason, the movers of great and weighty measures do not wish to urge them forward. Among the most emphatically important of those, the bill for an uniform Law of Bankruptcy stands the very foremost—since there is none the want of which has done more grievous mischief—none, the accomplishment of which would do so much good to such a number of our fellow-citizens, or wipe off from our various state laws so shameful a stain. It was among the orders of the day called up on yesterday; but was postponed in order to have it sanctioned by a fuller attendance. Much business of the smaller kind—petitions, resolutions, reports and bills on private claims, however, were despatched, and will, by so much at least, make a more clear ground for the unembarrassed march of the greater ones. Some of the former which passed yesterday, even may be considered as harbingers of some of the latter, of which I shall, perhaps in a few weeks, have to speak. To give you one example.—Mr. Pitkin, who, you know, in the statistical part of national knowledge, stands higher than any man in the house, proposed some resolutions, the ultimate drift of which may be perceived at once, and will no doubt be felt, before the end of the session, on the floor of congress. They were to the following effect: "That the secretary of the treasury be directed to lay before the house a state of the American and foreign tonnage employed in the foreign trade of the United States, in the years 1815, 1816, and 1817, distinguishing the nations to whom the foreign tonnage belonged."

"Also of the British and American tonnage employed in the trade between the United States and the British dominions in Europe for each of the said years, distinguishing the amount employed between the United States and the United Kingdoms of Great Britain and Ireland and their European dominions."—"Also of the British tonnage in the trade between the United States and the British West Indies, and the United States and British North American colonies in the said years, containing the amount entered in and cleared from the American ports in each of said years."—"And also a statement of the quantity of sugar, coffee, rum and molasses, imported into and exported from the American ports in each of said years—together with the countries and places whence the same were imported, and the quantity imported from each country or place." This, as he intimated, was to ascertain how far the European nations, since they had begun to recur, in consequence of the peace, to the strict observance of their navigation and colonial laws, had come in competition with the United States.—They were, he said, all important in some questions that would take place during the present session respecting the West India trade.

A resolution leading to an exchange of some of the United States' lands for lands belonging to the Choctaw, the Chickasaw and the Cherokee tribes of Indians, in Georgia, was also passed. The policy of this measure is to enable those Indians who are disposed to enter into the American family, to cultivate farms and live upon the fruits of them; and at the same time, to enable those who are incorrigibly attached to the hunter's life to get lands not exhausted of game, which those in Georgia are.

The bill providing by law for the recovery of fugitive Negroes who have escaped into other states, was read twice and referred to a committee of the whole.

Mobile, Oct. 24.

FRANCH SETTLEMENT.

We communicate with much pleasure the arrival of the schooner Rapid, Martin, master, from Philadelphia, bringing many passengers, who are on their way to the location of land made by the agent of the French Emigration Company. At the head of these emigrants, are the celebrated Gen. Count-Claude and Count Lefebvre Desnouettes. They have the highest idea of our territory, and indulge the highest hopes of agricultural success.

They have the best wishes of our citizens with them.

VALUABLE RECIPE.

For extracting poison from the wound of a rusty nail.

Take a bean, and after splitting it, apply one half (flat side) to the wound, bind it on, let it remain until it comes off of itself, and the poison will be extracted, and the wound healed.

EXPERIENCE.

Our correspondent speaks only of a property of the dry bean. We are informed that in its green state also, the bean possesses valuable qualities; by rubbing it upon the common wart, the juice will more certainly and speedily eradicate it, than any process of witchcraft ever practised.

SUDDEN AND MELANCHOLY DEATH.

We read, says the Baltimore Federal Republic, of battles without any peculiar emotion; and observe the lists of the dying, and of the dead scored up in the official accounts of human slaughter and of carnage, with more indifference than we would take a solitary ramble through a church yard and read the inscriptions on the grave-stones; but who can read with such callous indifference the following extract from the Cincinnati Gazette:—"DIED, on the evening of the 22d ult. Miss ELYNA COOPER, step-daughter of William Lemon, esq. of this town. The time and manner of this young lady's decease, were peculiarly awful and affecting. It was to have been her wedding night; she had retired to her room to dress, apparently in perfect health, and in less than fifteen minutes she was discovered to be a corpse by her sister, who entered the room to assist her in dressing. By this time the friends had begun to assemble to witness the nuptial ceremony; but alas, how changed the scene! She was a woman of delicate frame and it is supposed her sudden death was occasioned by fainting in a cold room, that her blood chilled and stagnated before any relief could be afforded. It is probable if a young person had been in the room with her, she might have been revived."

From the Boston Daily Advertiser.

Mr. Hooper of the Exchange Coffee House Reading Room has obliged us by the loan of the London Courier, of Oct. 25th, with Lloyd's List of the 24th, and Dublin papers to the 18th. The latest paper is nearly filled with a report of the trial of Jeremiah Brandith, called the Nottingham Captain, for Treason, he having been concerned in the riot of June 9. He was found guilty, as were three subsequently tried, the last of whom was recommended to mercy. Three other prisoners withdrew their plea of not guilty at the suggestion of the solicitor, and with the convict recommended to mercy, were sentenced to transportation. Mr. Cross, one of the counsel for the prisoners, made the following allusion to Mr. Cobbett's:

"At that period, he said, there was a class of men, far different from the unfortunate conspirators, of whom the prisoner was stated to be a member; these men lost no opportunity—wickedly, artfully, and with the worst designs, of instilling into the minds of the poor a hatred of the government of the country, which they took occasion to assert was the sole cause of the miseries and privations which existed. To one of these men he could not but allude—he meant the individual who sent into the world an address to the journeymen and laboring classes of this country. This diabolical publication was sent forth at a period when distress was most prevalent, and was followed up by others not less detestable and atrocious. He here read some of the advertisements from Cobbett's publication, in which it was stated that 44,000 of a certain number had been sold. Why such poison was suffered to be circulated with impunity, he could not but ask his majesty's attorney general, and the magistracy of the country."

VERY LATE FROM FRANCE.

We were last evening politely favored with Paris papers to the 7th November, brought by the ship Brandt, in 40 days from Rochelle. We do not discover, on a hasty perusal of them, any news of much public interest. The latest paper contains the French king's speech at the opening of the Chambers; but it presents to our view nothing of novelty. The same paper announces that Mr. Pinkney was about to return to the United States, the climate of Russia not agreeing with his health, and that Mr. Gallatin had requested to be recalled by our government as minister to the court of France.

These papers contain London dates to the 1st of November, inclusive; but not an article of the least importance is afforded us. 3 per cent. consols were at that date, in London, 82 5-8; 4 do 93; 5 per cents. 107 5-8.

From the N. Y. Commercial Advertiser.

By the arrival of the brig Hector, captain Smith, from Buenos Ayres, there have been received in town several files of Gazettes of that place up to the 3d of October last. It appears by the official bulletins of the several armies, that on the 5th of July general Belgrano had his headquarters at Tucuman, and that on the 21st general La Madrid was in sight of Tarija, where he had obliged the Royalists to retire, in consequence of the defeats they had experienced in all the engagements up to that date.

The armies of Chill, under generals San Martin and O'Higgins, had obtained the like advantages as late as the 2d of July, and they expected soon to have that part of the country entirely free from the Royalists.

The Supreme Director and Congress of the United Provinces of South America are described, in said papers, as busily engaged in promoting every thing in their power, and as far as the present circumstances permit, tending to ameliorate the condition of the poor, the instruction of the youth, the encouragement of arts and sciences, and the general improvement of the country; which, therefore, begins to present a new aspect—the people daily becoming more devoted to the cause of liberty and independence in proportion to the knowledge they acquire, the advantages they experience, and the prudent, impartial, and strict justice with which they are governed.

In a manifesto respecting the privateers, the Supreme Director of Buenos Ayres complains of the depredations they are committing under the assumed flags of those provinces, where the vessels licensed for that purpose are required previously to give unquestionable and ample bonds, strictly to conform themselves to the ordinances and regulations laid down by that government in conformity with the general usages of nations.

Several other daily papers have been also received, abounding with very choice and elegant discourses upon the most important subjects, and amongst them, some addressed to the editor of the Baltimore Mercantile Advertiser, in answer to the misrepresentations made by that paper, at the suggestion of some of the exiles from Buenos Ayres; where no plots or revolutions have been experienced or attempted since they were expelled from thence.

OMAR PACHA.

We have already stated our impressions of the character of the late Dey of Algiers, Omar Pacha; which were weakened by the account recently received of his last moments, in which it was said his fortitude had forsaken him, and that he had resorted to poison. The following narrative wears the face of truth—and, besides being a curious development in itself of the circumstance of the deposition of a ruler by his subjects, shows that Omar preserved, in his fall, the character for intrepidity and dignity which he acquired during his reign.

Algiers, Sept. 16.

For more than a month we remarked a ferment among the soldiery. Alarming reports, as to the person of the Dey, Omar Pacha, were spread. Nevertheless, complete tranquility seemed to succeed to these temporary disorders; but Omar Pacha, suspecting they wished to form a plot against him, refused to believe in the supposed tranquillity. The 2d of this month, in the morning, 600 Turkish soldiers marched towards the palace of the Regency. The Dey was seated, surrounded by all his ministers with the exception of the Grand Vekildarji, who was at his post of the marine. The Dey immediately caused his guards to take arms, and sent word to the Vekildarji to assemble troops and come to his relief.—That order arrived too late to be put in execution. The guard of the palace, composed of 60 men, was too weak to resist the revolution. They cleared, as if without obstacle, the first gates. It was in vain that the ministers and a great number of officers presented themselves to them, asked them what were the subjects of their complaint, and promised them satisfaction. They replied, that they would have Omar Pacha no more for their chief. This prince ordered them to be allowed to enter; and the most furious among them, to the number of 30, threw themselves into the interior of the palace, but not without fear of some ambushade. Omar Pacha waited for them with calmness, in the hope of appeasing them. They refused to hear him. The prince then drew his sabre and tried to defend himself; but, overwhelmed by numbers, he was dragged from the interior of his palace into the courts, where the revolutionaries strangled him. In the mean time other Turkish soldiers spread in great numbers through the city, proclaimed a new Dey, Ali Hadja, and carried him in triumph. He entered the palace of the Regency a few moments after the death of his predecessor.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Monday, December 22.

ARMY AND FORTIFICATIONS.

The following message was received from the President of the United States, by Mr. J. J. Monroe, his secretary.

To the House of Representatives of the United States.

In compliance with a resolution of the House of Representatives, of the 11th of this month, requesting to be informed of the present strength of the army of the United States, its distribution among the several military posts which it is designed to protect, and its competency to preserve & defend the fortifications amongst which it is distributed, and to aid in constructing such other military works, if any, as it may be deemed proper to erect, for the more effectual security of the U. States, and of the territories thereof: I now transmit a report from the secretary of war, which contains the information desired.

JAMES MONROE.

December 22, 1817. In compliance with the resolution of the House of Representatives requesting the President of the United States "to cause to be laid before the House of Representatives a return of the present strength of the army of the U. States, with the distribution thereof among the several military posts which it is designed to protect, together with any information which he may be able to afford respecting the competency of such force to preserve and defend the fortifications, amongst which it is distributed, and to aid in constructing, and to defend such other military works, if any, as it may be in the contemplation of the government to erect, for the more effectual security of the United States, and of the several territories thereof;" the secretary of war has the honor to make a return of the present strength of the army of the United States, with the distribution thereof among the several military posts.

The military establishment as it now stands, is sufficiently extensive to keep the fortifications in a state of preservation, but is wholly inadequate to defend them against a regular attack by a force of sufficient strength or skill. To garrison the forts on the maritime frontier alone would require, according to the best information and estimates of this department, more than twice our present number, to repel the assaults of such a force. The portion of the army stationed in the neighborhood of fortifications now erecting, are employed to aid in constructing them; but only an inconspicuous number has been so engaged, owing to its dispersed situation. Though not immediately comprehended in the resolution of the house, it is just to the army to observe, that it has been employed to a considerable extent, the last year, in the construction of roads, arsenals and other public works connected with the defence of the country.

The existing fortifications are thought to be wholly insufficient in the event of a future war. As the declaration of war is the act of the whole community; justice, honor, and humanity require, that every portion of the country should, as far as possible, be protected against its ravages. This is among the most sacred duties of the government; and, impressed with its importance, a board of the most skillful officers in our service has been constituted, to examine the whole line of our frontier, and to determine on the position and extent of works that may be necessary to the defence of the country. This great work is not yet completed; and in its present state, it is impossible to speak with any precision as to the extent to which our fortifications ought to be carried. The soldiers will be able to render important aid in constructing the works that may be determined on; but from the composition of the army, they can only come in aid of regular and professional workmen.

J. C. CALHOUN.

[The detailed and particular statement accompanying the report from the adjutant general's office, states the actual number of the present peace establishment at 8,221, including officers.] The report was ordered to lie on the table.

From the Columbus (Ohio) Gazette.

TO THE CURIOUS.

Mr. Willoughby, in his Ornithology, gives an account of a goose which was known to be eighty years of age. Had that goose annually produced six goslings, two males and four females; had those goslings with their progeny continued and multiplied in the same ratio till the eightieth year, at the death of the old goose, what would be the number of her descendants?—Were those geese arranged in one straight line according to their age, each occupying the space of a foot; how long must the old goose live that she may visit her remotest offspring—flying at the rate of twelve miles an hour? Again what sum of money would purchase these geese, at twenty five cents each?—Were the purchase money given in solid gold, allowing a cubic inch to be worth $177.11, and this gold deposited in the plain contained within Herschel's orbit, whose semidiameter, is 1,803,534,300 miles to what height would the whole plain be filled? Whoever will answer these enquiries shall be entitled to one gosling.

THEOLOGICAL CONTROVERSY.

The republication, on the Protestant part, of the controversy between M. B. and Quero, has been delayed, under the hope that the one announced on the other side, would, by its fair and honorable procedure, supersede any other. The issue has proved this hope to be groundless. There is no reason, indeed, to complain of the "notes." The fact of their existence demonstrates that the defence of M. B. required, itself, to be defended. The manner of their issue is such as the veriest enemies of their writer would have it. All this would therefore, have rendered this book the very one we wanted, if the writer had been as anxious to display his ingenueness, as some other quailers. Compliance with a resolution of the the strength of the army of the States, its distribution among the military posts which it is design-transmit a report from the secretary of war, which contains the information desired.

JAMES MONROE.
December 22, 1817.
In compliance with the resolution of the House of Representatives requesting the President of the United States "to cause to be laid before the House of Representatives a return of the present strength of the army of the U. States, with the distribution thereof among the several military posts which it is designated to protect, together with any information which he may be able to afford respecting the competency of such force to preserve and defend the fortifications, amongst which it is distributed, and to aid in constructing, and to defend such other military works, if any, as it may be in the contemplation of the government to erect, for the more effectual security of the United States, and of the several territories thereof;" the secretary of war has the honor to make a return of the present strength of the army of the United States, with the distribution thereof

The military establishment as it now

the fortifications in a state of preserva-work is not yet completed; and in its

NOTICE.

Having understood that the charity sermon which was announced to have been delivered on Christmas day,
and which was delivered in the morning, was supposed by a great number to have been announced for the evening service, (and in consequence of which many were disappointed) the sermon will be again preached in the afternoon on New Year's day, in the Catholic church, Alexandria, at half past four. By this, however, I do not either mean or wish to insinuate, that I am not satisfied with the contribution collected, or that I desire or expect those, who were so liberal on Christmas Day, to contribute again.

R. BAXTER.

NOTICE.

The police constables and watchmen are hereby required to be vigilant in the detection of all such persons who shall be guilty of the unlawful and dangerous practice of firing guns, &c. within the limits of the corporation, particularly on Christmas and New Year's Eve. It is hoped all well disposed citizens will aid the public officers in detecting and bringing to punishment every offender of this description. The danger of this practice is much greater than the thoughtless are aware of. By firing guns, especially (as is the practice) in the night,
there is considerable risk of setting houses
on fire, as well as injury to individuals who may be passing through the streets.
Steps will be taken to discover all who do offend in this particular: it detected the penalty of the law will be enforced.
Parents, masters and mistresses are therefore requested to restrain their children, apprentices and servants, and not to furnish them with the means of transgressing the law.

Old Lady, Mrs. Thomas
Young Lady, Legg

In the course of the Pantomime Mr.
Garner will introduce the celebrated Song of "The Beautiful Maid," and Miss Trajatta an Italian Polonaise, entitled
"La donna e' come il fiore."

In Act first, A Sea Scene and Storm.
The Libertaine is shipwrecked and thrown on the beach, at the door of a fisherman's hut. The fisherman's wives sewing him exhausted and lying on the ground, show compassion for his situation, and lead him into the hut—Storm continues.— Scaramouch is seen riding on the back of a Dolphin, by which he arrives safe on land. The Libertaine, returning from the hut refreshed, sees his servant Scara-mouch, who manifests the most extravagant joy at beholding his master. At the end of the first Act, a Bridal Dance.—
The Libertaine enters and carries off the bride—Scaramouch, in imitation of his master, runs off with an old lady.

Act second opens with a grand Equestrian Statue, on which is inscribed Gaz-man. In the course of the second Act, a grand Banquet, at which Don Juan presides. The festivity is interrupted by the appearance of the Ghost of Don Guzman, whose body the Libertaine murdered. Much confusion ensues—the ladies of the Banquet fly the room in all directions. The Ghost invites the Libertaine to follow, which he obeys. Last Scene represents a Charnel House. The Ghost of Guzman is discovered at a pedestal—Don Juan enters and takes leave of Scaramouch. The Ghost, who had invited the Libertaine to sup with him, offers him a human bone—the Libertaine, incensed, breaks it; on which he is seized by furies, who drag him to a dreary vault, where he is compelled to descend amidst the bursts of flames.

From the unlimited approbation bestowed on the TRICK & DEUCE, on Saturday evening, it will be repeated the first opportunity—of which due notice will be given.

days and Saturdays.

BOOKSELLERS,
KING-STREET, ALEXANDRIA.

RESPECTFULLY inform the public that they have just received from Lee's Medicine Store,

No. 46, Maiden lane, New-York, a fresh supply of the following valuable MEDICINES:

Hamilton's Worm-destroying Lozenges,

Which have within sixteen years past cured an immense number of persons of both sexes of every age and in every situation, of various dangerous complaints arising from WORMS, and from obstructions or foulness in the stomach and bowels.

This medicine bears no analogy whatever to others of similar titles so commonly complained of as operating with violence; on the contrary a particular excellence of this remedy is its being suited to every age and constitution. It contains nothing but what is perfectly innocent & is so mild in its operation that it cannot injure the most delicate pregnant lady or the tenderest infant of a week old should no worms exist in the body; but will, without pain or griping cleanse the stomach and bowels of whatever is foul or offensive, and thereby prevent the production of worms and many fatal disorders. The lozenges are particularly efficacious in carrying off all gross humours and eruptions, feverish and bilious complaints, and are the safest and most effect purgative that can be used on any occasion.

Description of Worms, and the symptoms by which they are known.

Worms which infest the human body are chiefly of four kinds viz.—The Terebra or large round worm; the Ascarides or small maw-worm; the Cucurbitina or short flat white worm; and lastly, the Tenia or tape-worm, so called from its resemblance to tape. This is often many yards long and is full of joints. It is most hurtful and most difficult to remove.

Among the symptoms attending worms are—disagreeable breath, especially in the morning; bad and corrupted gums; itching in the nose, and about the seat; convulsions, epileptic fits, and sometimes privation of speech; starting and grinding of the teeth in sleep; irregular appetite, sometimes loathing food and sometimes voracious; purging with slimy and fetid stools; vomiting; large and hard belly; pains and sickness at the stomach; pains in the head and thighs and lowness of spirits; slow fever with small and irregular pulse; a dry cough; excessive thirst; sometimes pale and unhealthy countenance, and sometimes the face bloated and flushed.

Persons afflicted with any of the above symptoms should have immediate recourse to Hamilton's Worm Destroying Lozenges, which have been constantly attended with success in all complaints similar to those above described.

A dose of this medicine given occasionally during the warm season, will effectually prevent "the vomiting and purging of children"—a dreadful disorder, which annually destroys thousands of the infant part of our citizens. It is likewise the mildest and most certain remedy known, and has restored to health and strength a great number when in an advanced stage of this fatal complaint. Particular and plain instructions are given for every part of the necessary treatment in such cases.

Children generally take this medicine with eagerness; having a pleasing appearance, and an agreeable taste.

BILIOUS and MALIGNANT FEVER—

Hahn's ANTI-BILIOUS PILLS.

THIS Medicine has been attended with a degree of success highly grateful to the inventor's feelings in several parts of the West Indies and in the Southern and Middle States, &c.

The testimony of a number of persons can be adduced, who have reason to believe that a timely use of this salutary remedy has, under Providence, preserved their lives when in the most alarming circumstances.

Facts of this conclusive nature speak more in favour of a medicine than columns of pompous eulogy founded on mere assertion.

It is not indeed presumptuously proposed as an infallible cure, but the inventor has every possible reason that can result from extensive experience for believing that a dose of these Pills taken once in every two weeks during the prevalence of our bilious fevers, will prove an infallible preventive; and further, that in the earlier stages of those diseases their use will very generally succeed in restoring health, and frequently in cases esteemed desperate and beyond the power of common remedies.

The operation of these pills is perfectly mild, so as to be used with safety by persons in every situation and of every age.

They are excellently adapted to carry off superfluous bile and prevent its morbid secretions—to restore and amend the appetite—to produce a free perspiration and thereby prevent colds which are often of fatal consequences. A dose never fails to remove a cold if taken on its first appearance; they are celebrated for removing habitual costiveness—sickness at the stomach and severe head-ache—and ought to be taken by all persons on a change of climate.

They have been found remarkably efficacious in preventing and curing disorders attendant on long voyages, and should be procured and carefully preserved for use by every seaman.
